God's Love

God's Love Consumes All

It is good to remember that in Orthodox teaching, heaven and hell are not about places, but about relationships. God is everywhere, and He did not create a heaven for some and a hell for others. We choose how we will experience the presence of God in the afterlife. God can not be absent from anywhere, and those who have chosen, in this life, to ignore God, will, nevertheless, be in His presence for all of eternity.

At the age of sixty-six (I can't believe I'm this old), I'm beginning to see a thinning in the ranks of my friends. I've lost a number of close friends, a few younger than myself, as well as both my parents. I've also lost relatives whom I dearly loved, and although my faith has been a very important part of my life since early childhood, I'm aware that some of those whom I've lost to death, were not people who placed any importance whatsoever to having a relationship with God.

Although some of my Evangelical friends would hold to the view that anyone who has not committed their life to Christ, will be damned, I am personally comforted with the knowledge that God is a loving, compassionate, and merciful God, and that He desires all to be saved. I rely on His mercy, and I trust in His ever-abiding love. There is comfort in knowing His mercy even extends to those who've ignored Him. I believe God will take into account the hearts of those who have not placed Him as the center of their lives, and that if they love others, and put others before self, God will take that into account.

God's love permeates the cosmos, and some experience His presence as blissful joy, while others experience His presence as a burning fire, and as emptiness. As to how we will feel about those whom we've loved in this life, but who have entered eternal life without a relationship with God, we can not know. We do know the prayers of the saints are heard by God, and are a comfort and support to even those who've died in a state of estrangement. We also know that our loving God hears our prayers and that our intercessory prayers bring comfort to even those who have passed this life without having developed a relationship with God. Our role as intercessors is just as important as that of the saints, and if I must take my neighbor's salvation as seriously as my own.

All this being said, I am not a proponent of the idea of universal salvation. I am simply sharing my heartfelt gratitude for a personal God Who has been merciful to me, a sinful and unworthy monk of over forty years.

ONE NATION UNDER GOD—JULY 4

Dear Father,

Living in uncertain times, You are a certain God.

Seeing turmoil all around us, You are the peace within us.

And though the future may seem dim, You are the Light that illuminates our path forward.

Make us one nation under God!

May we remember the high cost that was paid to live in one nation, a nation under God. May we not be fractured by politics or pettiness, but stand together, as an indivisible people, ready to face the challenges of our future. May we graciously live within the freedom and liberty endowed to us by our Creator. And may we seek justice for all—no matter their race, color, or creed.

Make us one nation under God!

Though imperfect, let us become a more perfect union.

Sometimes divided, let us learn to live indivisibly.

And at times ungrateful, let we, the people, be grateful for life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

In You, God, we trust to heal the wounds of our past, give us strength to endure the trials of today, and provide guidance to live together in a more peaceful tomorrow.

Make us one nation under God!

May Your Word direct us,

Your promises keep us,

Your power protect us,

And your purpose, restore us.

May our courage propel us,

Love define us,

Humility constrain us,

And faith unite us.

Make us one nation under God!

Father, we are blessed beyond measure.

Thankful beyond words.

And hopeful beyond imagination.

Make us one nation under God.

In Jesus' Name,

Amen.
