TROPARION—TONE 7

By Thy Cross, Thou didst destroy death!
To the thief, Thou didst open Paradise!
For the Myrrhbearers, Thou didst change weeping into joy.
And Thou didst command Thy disciples, O Christ God,
To proclaim that Thou art risen, granting the world great mercy!

Glory to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit, now and ever,
and unto ages of ages. Amen.

KONTAKION—TONE 7

The dominion of death can no longer hold men captive,
For Christ descended, shattering and destroying its powers!
Hell is bound, while the prophets rejoice and cry:
The Savior has come to those in faith!
Enter, you faithful, into the Resurrection!

ALLELUIA VERSES—TONE 7

It is good to give thanks to the Lord, to sing praises to Thy name, O Most High!

To declare Thy mercy in the morning, and Thy truth by night!

“Such is friendship, that through it we love places and seasons; for as bright bodies emit rays to a distance, and flowers drop their sweet leaves on the ground around them, so friends impart favor even to the places where they dwell. With friends even poverty is pleasant. Words cannot express the joy which a friend imparts; they only can know who have experienced. A friend is dearer than the light of heaven, for it would be better for us that the sun were exhausted than that we should be without friends.”

~ SAINT JOHN CHRYSOSTOM

Metropolitan Savas [Zembillas] passes this along:

Thanks John Congdon for reminding me of the poetry that came out of the horrors of World War One. This one is by Siegfried Sassoon.

SUICIDE IN TRENCHES

I KNEW a simple soldier boy
Who grinned at life in empty joy,
Slept soundly through the lonesome dark,
And whistled early with the lark.

In winter trenches, cowed and glum
With crumps and lice and lack of rum,
He put a bullet through his brain.
No one spoke of him again.

* * *

You smug-faced crowds with kindling eye
Who cheer when soldier lads march by,
Sneak home and pray you'll never know
The hell where youth and laughter go.

1917

"A letter from Aristides, a pagan Roman official, to Emperor Hadrian (117-138 AD), who was seeking to outlaw Christianity, on the nature of the Christians he had arrested so far:

'The Christians love one another. They never fail to help widows; they save orphans from those who would hurt them. If a man has something, he gives freely to the man who has nothing. If they see a stranger, Christians take him home and are happy, as though he were a real brother.

They don't consider themselves brothers in the usual sense, but brothers instead through the Spirit of God. And if they hear that one of them is in jail, or persecuted for professing the name of their redeemer, they all give him what he needs. If it is possible, they bail him out. If one of them is poor and there isn't enough food to go around, they fast several days to give him the food he needs. This is really a new kind of person. There is something divine in them.'

Aristides converted to Christianity shortly after he penned this letter."

Patty Martinovich: My husband told me the story of Filip, an Armenian friend of his in Russia who years ago went with another friend to visit an adoption center. The friend (and his wife) were in process of adopting. They were taken to an area where toddlers were playing. The minute they entered the room, one of the children a little boy, ran up to Filip (the Armenian man, who was not there to adopt) and said "Papa" and outstretched his arms to be picked up . He was the only child that did this! Even the friend was amazed by this. The toddler wouldn't let go of Filip, and well next thing you know he is calling his wife saying well we have two kids, what's one more? Many years later, all three of Filip's kids have done well and they are a happy family. Sometimes you have to listen to your heart.
